Commonwealth's attorney and excluded from the jury all questions and answers along this line. Mr. Eigenbrun said he had probably signed the alloged false statement of July 15, 1905, at his store. He did so as a matter of form and without examining it closely, as had been the case with other reports.

The defense noted exception to every objection made by the Commonwealth's attorney and sustained by the contributions. "Berry's for Clothes'

Mr. Eigenbrun resumed the stand, and said he did not know whether or not he signed the alleged false report of July 15 before or after it was signed by Mr. Davis. Objection by the Commonwealth as immaterial, and objection was made to other questions asked by the defense and sustained and exceptions noted. Among these were questions as to Mr. Eigenbrun's liability for the overdrafts of Eigenbrun Bros., of which he was a member, considered immaterial by the court. August, 1988, and final testimony for the State may be introduced on Monday, to which time adjournment was taken to-day.

When the court met this morning the jury was sent out and kept out for an hour to allow discussion of matters brought out by the testimony of John L. Graves yesterday afternoon and the introduction by the Commonwealth of furture testimony to show intent and knowledge of the defendant, as evidenced by the records, in the making of the alreged false report.

W. A. Worth, former secretary and teller of the bank, was recalled by the defense. He had been engaged in the banking business since 1968. He has examined the books of the bank in reference to the statement of July 15, 1908. If Mr. Davis and Davis & Pavis had collateral deposited with casalier to cover their overdrafts the statement of the bank, instead of the chanter to cover their overdrafts the statement of the bank, instead of being false, as alleged, would be a true statement. And the same would be true as to all the overdrafts. The Atlantic Dredging Company's overdraft of about $11,000 and secured by note for $10,000 and deed of trust on a dredge and other property. The everdrafts of Charles Hall Davis and Davis & Davis were secured by bonds and commercial paper of value. Mr. Worth named the collateral for all the overfrafts.

While Mr. Worth was still on the stand the nour for adjournment arrived, and the court adjourned over until Monday morning, not desiring to keep the jury together on Saturday, and this being agreeable to counsel on both sides. The Commonwealth is near the close of its evidence and may finish on Monday, though it is possible that after Mr. Worth's testimony this afternoon, in the nature of an expert, the Commonwealth may expert to work on the books of the bank.

The defense it is understood, will

E. Vann, enforce the State fisheries law. The commander of the Elfreida is to report at Edention for service. The order went to-day to Commander T. C. Daniels, of Newbern, who will draw on the Newbern or other divisions of the briggade for the twenty-five men. The boat carries one and three-pound gune. guns.

resermen in Albemarie waters and tributary channels have for some time given much trouble to Pish Commissioner Vann, and have some openly and persistently to fish in prohibited territory, defying the orders of the commissioner. The situation was laid before the Governor some weeks ago by Commissioner vann with the result that the Elfreida was sent in the sound for a cruise with a view to bringing the obstreperous fishermen that aubmission without force, but without avail. Now the vessel is ordered to return and clear out unlawfully placed nets with force of arms if necessary. Fishermen in Albemarie waters and tribu

EXERCISES AT CLAREMONT.

Celebration in Memory of Life and Works of Fred Woodrow, [Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Claremont, Va., March 22.—The Poc Literary Society, composed of Claremont High School students, devoted its exercises this afternoon to the celebration of the life and works of Fred Woodrow, a one-time Claremont poet, whose songs and hymns have found their way into several standard collections. He was also the author of a work entitled "Nobody Knows."

Woodrow: was an eccentric Scotch-irishman and a poet of ne mean order. He died in St. Louis about a year ago, impecunious, at an advanced age. Latterly he was employed in an editorial capacity on a technical journal. He was careless about his published withings, and the Poe Literary Society has undertaken the work of gathering them together. He did his best work while living at Claremont, in the River Front cottage owned by George J. Scay, of Richmond.
